CASE STUDY

Housing society management app

Our client, one of the largest private conglomerate in Vietnam with high profile real estate projects all across Vietnam is currently owning many apartment buildings. The real estate company aims to build a multi-function app to helps its customers register and manage all services and have a realtime and friendly platform to connect to customer service. The app also has to provide the building managers a comprehensive set of tools to control the quality of their services. The system includes both a web-based application and a mobile application.

Alphaway is currently working on building a powerful multi-function app yet having a friendly user experience for our client. The success of the project will not only provide the company with a powerful tool to take care of their customers but also gives the building's residents a friendly app to have a relaxed, convenient experience.
